5 THINGS TO KNOW

WELCOME TO METRO BOSTON

ELAINE MCCALLIG, REPORTER

Your phone buzzes. But wait ... it's a number that isn't saved on your phone. Could it be a recruiter for that dream job you applied for on LinkedIn? In this instance, for me, it wasn't. Instead, it was a prerecorded message from an elderly lady inviting me to press 1 to avail of "urgent prayer" in dulcet tones. Needless to say, I was slightly bemused. Although "urgent prayer" won't remedy the scourge of robocalls, turn to page 6 or visit metro.us to check out our definitive guide to eliminating robocalls — once and for all.

DEMS RALLY AGAINST SEPARATION POLICY

1 Democratic lawmakers joined hundreds of protesters outside an immigration detention facility in New Jersey on Sunday for a Father's Day demonstration against the Trump administration's practice of separating children from their parents at the U.S.-Mexico border. "This must not be who we are as a nation," said Rep. Jerrold Nadler, one of seven members of Congress from New York and New Jersey who met with five detainees inside the facility, including three who said they had young relatives removed from their care after seeking asylum at the border. The event in Elizabeth came as news stories highlighting the family separations intensified political pressure on the White House, even from some of President Donald Trump's fellow Republicans. U.S. officials said on Friday that nearly 2,000 children were separated from adults at the border between mid-April and the end of May. In May, Attorney General Jeff Sessions announced a "zero-tolerance" policy in which all those apprehended entering the U.S. illegally, including those seeking asylum, would be criminally charged, generally leading to children being separated from their parents.

5 DEAD AFTER TEXAS BORDER PATROL CAR CHASE

2 Five immigrants died and several others were injured on Sunday when their vehicle careened out of control while being chased by U.S. Border Patrol agents in Texas about 90 miles north of the Mexican border, U.S. media reported, citing officials. Some of the injured were ejected from a Chevy Suburban packed with 14 people that was traveling up to 100 miles per hour, Dimmit County Sheriff Marion Boyd told KFDM News 4 television of San Antonio. "The vehicle ran off the road and caught gravel and then tried to recorrect and then caused the vehicle to turn over several times," Boyd told CNN. "We've seen this many, many times, in not only this county but other counties along the border," Boyd told CNN. "This is a perfect example of why our borders need to be secure." Some of the victims were flown by helicopter to San Antonio for medical treatment. Border Patrol agents attempted to stop the vehicle when the chase ensued and were soon joined by Dimmit County deputies, KFDM reported.

1 DEAD, 20 HURT IN SHOOTING AT NJ ARTS FESTIVAL

4 A suspected gunman was fatally shot after multiple people opened fire at an all-night arts festival in New Jersey, wounding 20 people including a boy who is in critical condition, authorities said on Sunday. Prosecutors said a 33-year-old man was killed and a second suspect arrested after gunfire erupted at 3 a.m. at the event in Trenton, about 60 miles southwest of New York City. "Preliminary investigation reveals that multiple individuals attending the Art All Night event opened fire within the venue. ... Multiple weapons have been recovered," Angelo Onofri, prosecutor for Mercer County, told a news conference. Among those wounded by bullets was a 13-year-old boy who Onofri said was in extremely critical condition. He said more than 1,000 people were believed to have been at the festival when the violence started. "It absolutely could have been worse, given the confined space and the number of shots that appear to have been fired," Onofri said. Authorities are investigating whether the deceased suspect was killed by police or by gunfire from other suspects, he said.

US BOMBS SYRIAN POSITIONS: SYRIAN SOURCE

5 Syrian state media, citing a military source, reported early Monday that U.S.-led coalition aircraft had bombed "one of our military positions" in eastern Syria, leading to deaths and injuries. The strike took place in al-Harra, southeast of Albu Kamal, it reported. There were no immediate details on casualties. A commander in the military alliance backing Syrian President Bashar al-Assad also told Reuters that drones, "probably American," had bombed positions of Iraqi factions between Albu Kamal and Tanf and Syrian military positions. A spokesman for the coalition was not immediately available. The U.S.-led coalition is supporting an alliance of Syrian Arab and Kurdish militia fighting Islamic State northeast of Albu Kamal. The Syrian army, alongside allied Iran-backed militias including Lebanon's Hezbollah and Iraqi groups, drove Islamic State from Albu Kamal and its environs last year, but the jihadists have since staged attacks in the area. U.S. forces are also based in Tanf, southwest of Albu Kamal in the Syrian desert near the borders of Iraq and Jordan.

Something great is happening at Encore in Everett...

Here's what the people making it happen want you to know:

The Encore Boston Harbor development has generated thousands of good union jobs. It will create thousands more. Everyday we get up and go to work to build something. For four years, we've worked hard to transform a polluted industrial site into something we can be proud of — a development that will be a catalyst for opportunities denied our community for too long. Thousands of working families are depending on the good jobs and bright future that Encore Boston Harbor is making possible.

We've put our heart and soul into building Encore Boston Harbor. Let's keep building opportunity. Let's keep building community.

Let's keep building Encore.

About 2.5 billion robocalls each month, according to the FCC. GETTY IMAGES

In our technologically driven society, robocalls truly are a modern plague.

The Federal Trade Commission has reported a colossal increase in the number of robocall complaints; skyrocketing to 4.5 million in 2017 from 1.7 million complaints in 2014. But those are just the calls that are reported. The Federal Communications Commission estimates that U.S. consumers get nearly 2.5 billion monthly robocalls — automated, prerecorded calls that regulators have labeled a "scourge," according to FCC estimates.

YouMail, a company that blocks and tracks robocalls, estimated that 3.4 billion robocalls were placed in April in the U.S., an all-time high.

Last month, New York state Sen. Brad Hoylman put forth legislation that would ban robocalling without the receiver's prior consent. The proposed legislation would also require phone companies to offer consumers call-blocking technology free of charge.

New York is one of the most severely impacted regions in the U.S. for robocalls, with the 917 area code ranking the fifth worst in the nation for these irritating calls, according to YouMail.

By employing a crafty tactic that tricks you into thinking the caller is local, telemarketers are now reaching more people than ever — but, there are ways to eradicate robocalls.

According to the FTC, "neighbor spoofing" is the newest way telemarketers and robocallers are manipulating you into taking their call. There is widely available technology that allows robocallers to hijack whichever telephone number they like, and use it to spam unwitting consumers.

Last year, the most common robocalls infecting telephones across the U.S. included debt reduction services, vacation and timeshare deals, and warranties and protection plans, according to the FTC.

HOW CAN YOU GET RID OF ROBOCALLS?

The FTC has shared four pieces of advice for Metro readers who are fed up with these pesky calls.

1. Register for the Do Not Call Registry
Signing up to the Do Not Call Registry lets legitimate companies know that you're not interested in receiving any more telemarketing live calls and robocalls. As telemarketers must review their call list every 31 days, you should be free of these calls from legitimate companies in no time.

To sign up, log on to donotcall.gov or call their toll-free number on 888-382-1222 from the number you'd like to register.

2. Report unwanted calls
Communicating any unwanted calls to donotcall .gov allows the FTC to track the worst violators and keep an eye out for any patterns that may emerge.

3. Hang up
If you're already registered on the Do Not Call Registry and you get a sales call, simply hang up. As legitimate companies must heed the rules of the registry, any sales calls you receive after 31 days of being registered are more than likely illegal.

4. Download call -blocking apps
There are dozens of quality call blocking apps available on Apple's App Store or on Google Play. For landlines, reach out to your telephone provider to discuss how you can enable a call blocking feature to fend against robocalls.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

CITY of BOSTON
NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT

26 COURT STREET
BOSTON, MA 02108
TEL: 617-635 -0603

These notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities to be undertaken by the City of Boston's Department of Neighborhood Development.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

On or about July 4, 2018, the City of Boston, acting through its Department of Neighborhood Development (DND), will submit a request to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the release of Federal funds through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program pursuant to the authority of Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended (t42 U.S.C. 5301 et seq.) for the following programs:

ReStore Program (FY2019): The ReStore Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program provides 1:1 matching grants for moderate to substantial exterior and/or facade improvements for businesses located in neighborhood commercial areas. A separate signage component provides grants for signage and window graphics. All facade improvements are subject to DND design review. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $1,105,029.

Commercial Real Estate Development (FY2019): The Commercial Real Estate Development Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program provides loans and grants to for-profit businesses for larger scale economic development projects that either create or retain jobs for low-income persons or provide necessary business services to low and moderate-income areas. Funding can be used for acquisition, construction, rehabilitation or working capital loans for commercial and industrial projects. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $800,718.

Partners with Non-Profits (FY2019): The Partners with Non-Profits Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program provides matching grants (up to $25,000) and emergency grants (up to $20,000) to community based non-profit organizations to undertake physical improvements to their facilities. The program also provides matching grants up to $2,500 to implement community service projects. Public Capital Improvement funding is also available for beautification projects such as clocks, benches, banners, and plantings. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $647,459.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The City of Boston has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) is not required. As specific projects are identified individual environmental reviews will be undertaken, pursuant to 24 CFR Part 58. Environmental Assessments will be undertaken for the following: (1) all new construction projects; (2) projects in which the facilities and improvements are not in place and will change in size or capacity by more than 20 percent; and (3) projects that involve a change in land use, such as from non-residential to residential, commercial to industrial, or from one industrial use to another. For all projects not requiring an environmental assessment, a small environmental review related to floodplains, wetlands, site contamination and historic resources would be undertaken. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Records (ERR) on file at the DND Compliance Unit, 26 Court Street, 11th Floor and may be examined or copied weekdays 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., excluding legal holidays.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the ERR to the DND Compliance Unit. All comments received by July 3, 2018 will be considered by the City of Boston prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. Comments should specify which notice they are addressing.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The City of Boston certifies to HUD that Martin J. Walsh, in his capacity as Mayor, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities and allows the City of Boston to use Program funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Boston's certification for a period of fifteen (15) days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later), only if they are on one of the following bases:

(a) The certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of either City of Boston; (b) the City of Boston has omitted a step or failed to make a decision of finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Thomas P. O'Neill Federal Building, 10 Causeway Street, Boston, MA 02222-1092. Potential objectors should contact HUD to verify the actual last day if the objection period.

JP nonprofit expands with 31,000-square-foot food campus

Community Servings will be able to feed even more thanks to a new expansion

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

The idea of using food as medicine is more than a trend — it has proven benefits, at least when it comes to the medically-tailored meals provided by Community Servings.

The Jamaica Plain nonprofit that provides meals to homebound and critical ill residents in Greater Boston, modifying those meals to meet individual medical needs, like providing foods low in vitamin K for someone on blood thinners or specific meals for those with diabetes.

On average, Community Servings provides meals to about 1,300 people daily but even more are on a waiting list, said Tim Leahy, chief development officer at the nonprofit. They're working to address that, though, with a 31,000-square-foot expansion.

"The first and really important thing that we're going to be able to do is increase the number of meals that we're producing," Leahy said. "Right now, it's around 550,000, but this building will allow us to triple that to 1.5 million meals on an annual basis."

> "Right now, it's around 550,000, but this building will allow us to triple that to 1.5 million meals on an annual basis."
> Tim Leahy

"You go to the hospital less often, you use an ambulance less frequently and are admitted less often — all lower if you're receiving our meals," Leahy said.

And that's not all for the expansion, dubbed the "Food Campus." The $21 million venture under construction will feature multiple kitchens to provide an array of services. One will host nutrition-education classes for clients and their caregivers, another will provide more space for volunteers in a "family-friendly" environment that is safe for children and those with developmental disabilities.

Yet another area will be designated for baking desserts, and finally, one section will be home to a Food & Health Policy Center, meant to focus on research into these medically-tailored meals. Through this, Leahy hopes, others organizations around the country will be able to replicate the Community Servings program.

> The $21 million venture currently under construction will feature multiple kitchens to provide an array of services.

"Major cities, they all have programs like ours, but if you're not in one of those communities, there's no one to serve you," he said. "So instead of getting care in home, you might go to a nursing home instead of being home where you want to be."

The Food Campus is expected to take 15 months to build, with workers and volunteers hoping to move in by fall of 2019. Though Leahy wishes the expansion could have happened years ago, "knowing that we have people waiting for meals is heart-wrenching," he said — he's excited that it's finally underway, so Community Servings can expand its reach.

Globe columnist suspended for marathon-bombing fabrications

Kevin Cullen will return as a general assignment reporter in September.

SARAH LUOMA
letters@metro.us

Boston Globe columnist Kevin Cullen has been suspended for three months without pay following an investigation into comments and remarks he made about the Boston Marathon bombings that occurred on April 15, 2013.

The decision to suspend Cullen was announced Friday, June 15 after an extensive review of his column by a third party.

The Boston Globe had initially placed Cullen on paid leave in late April with pay when a column he wrote, reflecting on the day of the Boston Marathon bombings on their fifth anniversary, had sports radio station WEEI and others questioning his story.

"Our review leads us to a conclusion that Mr. Cullen damaged his credibility."

Boston Globe Publisher John Henry and Editor Brian McGrory

Cullen had placed himself at the scene of the bombings, detailing the events in his writing about seeing victim Krystle Campbell, who lost her life, as well as witnessing emergency personnel as they worked to help those injured.

It was later confirmed by Kevin Cullen himself and others that he was not on the scene of the 2013 bombings but miles away.

Following the investigation and Cullen's official suspension, Boston Globe's publisher John Henry and editor Brian McGrory have released a statement.

"Our review leads us to a conclusion that Mr. Cullen damaged his credibility. These were serious violations for any journalist and for the Globe, which relies on its journalists to adhere to the same high standards of ethics and accuracy when appearing on other platforms. Our review also leads us to believe that Mr. Cullen did not commit irrevocable damage."

Boston Globe columnist Kevin Cullen GETTY IMAGES / PAUL MAROTTA

Cullen has yet to officially comment on his suspension.

Cullen is scheduled to return to the Globe sometime in September to work as a general -assignment reporter for two months before he is allowed to work as a columnist again.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

CITY of BOSTON
NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT

26 COURT STREET
BOSTON, MA 02108
TEL: 617-635 -0603

These notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities to be undertaken by the City of Boston's Department of Neighborhood Development.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

On or about July 4, 2018, the City of Boston, acting through its Department of Neighborhood Development (DND), will submit a request to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the release of Federal funds through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program pursuant to the authority of Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended (t42 U.S.C. 5301 et seq.) for the following programs:

Property Management Program (FY2019): The Property Management Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program makes needed emergency repairs, such as boarding, to prevent illegal entry on city-owned properties acquired through tax title foreclosure, and, readies city-owned properties for disposition. Repairs are done to ensure the safety of the occupants or abutters and to maintain the integrity of the structure. Where relocation is required, the Uniform Relocation Act (URA) or the City's Optional Relocation Policy is followed, as applicable. No CDBG funds are used for ongoing maintenance of these properties. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $189,500.

Demolition Program (FY2019): The Demolition Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program demolishes key blighted properties that pose a threat to the public safety or those identified by residents as eyesores in their neighborhoods. The buildings to be demolished will be vacant and will be deemed infeasible for rehabilitation. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $323,941.

Brownfields Environmental Abatement (FY2019): The Brownfields Environmental Abatement Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program investigates tests, analyzes, and removes environmental hazards on foreclosed and surplus buildings and land in order to protect the public's health and safety and facilitate the redevelopment of these parcels. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $551,985.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The City of Boston has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) is not required. As individual activities are identified, an environmental review related to floodplains, wetlands, site contamination and historic resources would be undertaken. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Records (ERR) on file at the DND Compliance Unit, 26 Court Street, 11th Floor and may be examined or copied weekdays 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., excluding legal holidays.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the ERR to the DND Compliance Unit. All comments received by July 3, 2018 will be considered by the City of Boston prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. Comments should specify which notice they are addressing.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The City of Boston certifies to HUD that Martin J. Walsh, in his capacity as Mayor, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities and allows the City of Boston to use Program funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Boston's certification for a period of fifteen (15) days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later), only if they are on one of the following bases:

(a) The certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of either City of Boston; (b) the City of Boston has omitted a step or failed to make a decision of finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Thomas P. What a fine way to celebrate Father's Day! Rip a few hundred immigrant families apart!

The heat is rising on the Trump administration's policy of separating parents from their children at the border, and not just because of the large, canvas tents in the 100-degree South Texas sun. Democrats are howling. Texans are howling. Many Republicans are howling, too.

But Donald Trump, who could change the zero tolerance policy with a poke of his Twitter finger or a stroke of his pen, is still refusing to budge, pandering to the narrow swath of Americans who judge a national immigrant policy by how much pain its afflicts on the most vulnerable immigrants.

Mike Pence had better find a new Bible verse to defend this latest abomination, and it won't be Matthew 25:40: "Whatever you do to the least of my brothers, that you do unto me."

Even some knee-jerk Trump defenders are distancing themselves. "As a mother, as a Catholic, as someone with a conscience," White House counselor Kellyanne Conway said to Chuck Todd on NBC's "Meet the Press," "I will tell you that nobody likes this policy." Still, Conway, echoing others in the White House, continued to duck responsibility, blaming Democrats for a Trump administration policy announced by Attorney General Jeff Sessions.

But the pictures coming out of Texas were so harsh — 20 kids to a tent in the desert, their parents who knows where — that even first lady Melania Trump, who rarely contradicts her husband, felt pressure to weigh in. "Mrs. Trump hates to see children separated from their families, spokeswoman Stephanie Grisham told CNN, "She believes we need to be a country that follows all laws, but also a country that governs with heart."

Taking kids away from their moms and dads, of course, is not going to stop drugs from entering the country and protect us against ISIS terrorists. It won't even secure the border from the next wave of desperate Central American asylum-seekers. It certainly won't get Trump's wall built.

What it will do is hurt a bunch of parents and children.

Hope you had a nice Father's Day.

John Travolta on going gangster for 'Gotti'

The actor, film producer, dancer and singer chats with Metro about his storied career and playing the infamous New York crime lord in the new drama.

PAULO PORTUGAL

John Travolta and wife Kelly Preston join up as a couple (for the third time) in "Gotti," a film about the infamous Gambino crime-family leader. Metro caught up with Travolta at Cannes earlier this year, where he danced on the beach and admitted he wanted to play a Bond villain, among other highlights.

Is there a perfect setting for an almost perfect interview with one of the greatest character actors of our time? Picture this: a glitzy glamour suite at top of Carlton Hotel, the wonder of La Croisette, in the busy town of Cannes during the 71st edition of the film festival.

The equation quickly comes together when this elegantly dressed, charming man comes in the room and shakes our hands with an open, bright smile and shiny blue eyes. Not at all the dark character we saw during the screening of "Gotti," where the 64-year-old actor plays mobster John Gotti Sr. in a biopic directed by "Entourage's" Kevin Connolly.

Ahead, Travolta opens up about the role, his aspirations to play a bad guy in a Bond movie, and more.

You're promoting the 40th anniversary of "Grease" at Cannes this year.
Yes. I will be there presenting the film and inviting everybody to dance on the sand. But isn't that amazing? This is a film that keeps on giving and giving.

Well, along with "Pulp Fiction," "Saturday Night Fever," "Face/Off" and your other hits.
Yes, all those films are still very watchable. They seem to be timeless. "Pulp Fiction" is 24 years old, but we still watch it on the internet. Same thing happens with "Grease" and "Saturday Night Fever." There are even emojis of myself in those movies! How do you predict something like that?

Did you ever think "Pulp Fiction" would become that big?
No way. I thought it could be something like "Reservoir Dogs." Maybe a little more popular, because it had Bruce (Willis), and myself. Plus, it's a [two-hour-and-45 minute] film. It's long.

You're working with Kelly (Preston) again. Is it the third time. Is it hard to forget that she's your wife?
No, and I'll tell you why. When we chose to work together we try to make it authentic. She could have done that work whether I was playing Gotti or not. We're not doing it because we're a couple. When it's honest and you have integrity, you can get away with being together. I knew she wanted to do this character, and I knew she could do it.

"I think I can do a good Bond villain. That would fulfill a childhood dream of mine."

Do you have any sense when a film is going to have longevity?
That's a great question, but I don't know if there is any way to predict that. I guess I was just fortunate, without trying to be egocentric. I think I have more timeless movies than almost anybody.

How do you look at yourself in those moments? Can you detach yourself from other icons?
Yes, I can. Because there is enough time since they were established that they were affirmed. I just look at them as Marilyn Monroe in the white dress, or James Dean with the red jacket, Brando with the cap or Elizabeth Taylor in that bathing suit. … I see them no differently than these visual images that define a movie or a time in life. I may have a more personal connection but I don't view them differently than what I grew up with, the Beatles.

John Gotti is a pretty dark character. I know you wore his clothes, and even used his cologne. Did that help?
Yes. His scent is still there. I had his coat, his cufflinks, his watch, his shirt. And it fit me. It's interesting because he's shorter than me. I'm a big guy, but he was too. But I really liked wearing his stuff. It helped me.

Do you have any specific memories from the Gotti story?
My favorite was finding out why everybody liked him so much. Because my superficial reaction was at first: "Why was he so popular, why was he so loved?" He was a guy who didn't let a business go out of business. He helped out sick people, people in need. Even though he managed a criminal outfit, he came back to the community. In a way, he was closer to the "cosa nostra" that had a loyal devotion and trust. The RICO Act (Rackteer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations) blew all that out for him. But he was a different kind of criminal.

Is it true that you want to do a Bond film?
Yeah! Because I grew up with those films. When Bond first came out I was 8 years old and was fascinated by it. It's something from my childhood that stays with us. I don't get impressed by Marvel films at all, but with Bond, yes. I think I can do a good Bond villain. That would fulfill a childhood dream of mine.

What's your dream today?
Just to continue to have opportunities, do good work.

"Gotti" is now in theaters. BRIAN DOUGLAS

"Drunk History" is back this week with another inebriated interpretation of the past. COMEDY CENTRAL

Why 'Drunk History' wouldn't exist without Jack Black

Derek Waters explains ahead of season 5's return.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

"Drunk History," the popular television show based on a Funny or Die web series from 2007, still has several episodes to go before season five concludes.

Yet this didn't stop Comedy Central from renewing it for a 16-episode sixth round. This excites co-creator Derek Waters, of course, but he's also itching to share what remains of season five with the fans.

"Jack Black is in the new season," he says. "He has been in all of them except for one, and in my opinion, Jack is the reason this show exists. It was just a one-time thing for a UCB show I did with Michael Cera. That's all it was ever going to be. It wasn't going to be on the internet. But Jack saw it and said, 'I want to play Benjamin Franklin.'"

Longtime fans should know that Black got his wish to play Franklin (as well as Elvis Presley, Orson Welles and William Mulholland). Audiences who tuned in from the beginning may also notice what Waters and co-creator Jeremy Konner have tinkered with since the Funny or Die days.

For instance, whenever the celebrity storyteller narrates their chosen sketch, the camera will occasionally cut to Waters drunkenly respond to or laughing at,their story. Season one only ever included audio of Waters' responses, but the format has essentially stayed the same.

GETTY IMAGES

"I never want the audience to feel that the narrator is in harm's way. That they're just drunk and alone, talking to a camera crew," he explains. "My goal is to let the audience know the narrator is OK, and to serve as their representative in those moments. It's easier to watch two people enjoying each other's company than one person getting drunk and telling a story. That feels like you're at a party you weren't invited to. I want to include the audience."

Like when Kyle Mooney ("Arrested Development," "Saturday Night Live") drunkenly fails to mention his entire name before narrating the D.B. Cooper segment in season five's "Drunk Mystery" episode. Waters, who also isn't entirely sober, begins laughing uncontrollably.

"I get a better performance out of someone if they're drinking with someone, instead of being by themselves and feeling possibly exploited," Waters adds.

The "Drunk History" team has plenty of ideas for what to do with season six, including answering the question, "What would Ken Burns' baseball documentary look like if inebriated?" Until then, they're focused on this season's remaining episodes, and the entries they've already aired, like "Underdogs," featuring Colin Hanks as Fred Rogers, and its connection to the show's opening title.

"Every year we change about four or five of those images in the opening," Waters explains, confirming that the "Mr. Rogers' Neighborhood" host's image was added this year. When asked if he's seen the "Won't You Be My Neighbor?" documentary, however, Waters says he hasn't.

"Drunk History" returns June 19 on Comedy Central.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

CITY of BOSTON
NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT

26 COURT STREET
BOSTON, MA 02108
TEL: 617-635 -0603

These notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities to be undertaken by the City of Boston's Department of Neighborhood Development.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

On or about July 4, 2018, the City of Boston, acting through its Department of Neighborhood Development (DND), will submit a request to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the release of Federal funds through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program pursuant to the authority of Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended (t42 U.S.C. 5301 et seq.), for the following programs:

Existing Homeowner Rehabilitation Program (FY2019): The Existing Homeowner Rehabilitation Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program provides a combination of loans, grants, discount financing and technical assistance to Boston's homeowners to make needed property improvements. Activities include small-scale rehab of owner-occupied 1-4 family buildings; emergency repairs and substantial rehab for senior homeowners; substantial rehab of city-purchased REO's; and a purchase rehab program (up to $60,000) for foreclosed (REO) properties. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $3,854,244.

Lead Paint Abatement Program (FY2019): The Lead Paint Abatement Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. It involves performing testing and lead hazard abatement and control activities in targeted, low and moderate income, private housing, and conducting general or targeted community awareness and education programs on lead hazard control and poisoning prevention within this designated area. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $366,114.

Grassroots Program (FY2019): The Grassroots Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program supports the development of community gardens. The program provides grants, technical assistance and vacant land to neighborhood groups and non-profits. The program does not pay for ongoing maintenance of the open space. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $561,209.

Main Streets Program (FY2019): The Main Streets Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. The program provides assistance to designated Main Street districts in five areas: (1) design; (2) organizational; (3) promotional; (4) economic restructuring; and (5) technology. Assistance is provided through non-profit Main Streets organizations in 19 designated Main Streets districts. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $1,549,197.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The City of Boston has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) is not required. As individual activities are identified, an environmental review related to floodplains, wetlands and historic resources would be undertaken. For the Grassroots and Main Streets Program activities, site contamination reviews will also be undertaken. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Records (ERR) on file at the DND Compliance Unit, 26 Court Street, 11th Floor and may be examined or copied weekdays 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., excluding legal holidays.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the ERR to the DND Compliance Unit. All comments received by July 3, 2018 will be considered by the City of Boston prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. Comments should specify which notice they are addressing.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The City of Boston certifies to HUD that Martin J. Walsh, in his capacity as Mayor, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied.
HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities and allows the City of Boston to use Program funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Boston's certification for a period of fifteen (15) days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later), only if they are on one of the following bases:

(a) The certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of either City of Boston; (b) the City of Boston has omitted a step or failed to make a decision of finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Thomas P. O'Neill Federal Building, 10 Causeway Street, Boston, MA 02222-1092. Potential objectors should contact HUD to verify the actual last day if the objection period.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

CITY of BOSTON
NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT

26 COURT STREET
BOSTON, MA 02108
TEL: 617-635 -0603

These notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities to be undertaken by the City of Boston's Department of Neighborhood Development.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

On or about July 4, 2018, the City of Boston, acting through its Department of Neighborhood development (DND), will submit a request to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the release of Federal funds through the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program pursuant to the authority of Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended (t42 U.S.C. 5301 et seq.), and the HOME Investment Partnerships Program pursuant to the authority of Title II of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act, as amended (t42 U.S.C. 12701 et seq.), for the following programs:

Rental Housing Development-Preservation Program (FY2019): The Rental Housing Development Preservation Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program provides loans to non-profit and private developers for the acquisition and/or rehab of occupied buildings. Funds are made available via competitive requests for proposals and decisions are made in conjunction with the State's consolidated funding rounds. The program goal is to prevent displacement, loss of housing opportunities, and securing long term affordability. Larger projects are required to set aside a percentage of units for homeless. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $2,956,931.

Rental Housing Development-Production Program (FY2019): The Rental Housing Development Production Program is a continuation program that commences on July 1, 2018. This program makes funding available to assist non-profit or for-profit developers with the cost of developing new affordable rental housing units through new construction, substantial rehabilitation or adaptive re-use of buildings. Funds are made available via competitive requests for proposals for 1) rental development; 2) housing for homeless households and 3) REO rental developments and REO supportive housing developments. The total amount of CDBG federal funds will be approximately $1,245,093, and the total amount of HOME federal funds will be approximately $5,858,345.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The City of Boston has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) is not required. As specific projects are identified individual environmental reviews will be undertaken, pursuant to 24 CFR Part 58. Environmental Assessments will be undertaken for the following: (1) all new construction projects; (2) rehabilitation projects in which the unit density changes by more than 20 percent; (3) rehabilitation projects that change land use from residential to non-residential; and (4) rehabilitation projects in which the estimated cost of rehabilitation is greater than 75 percent of the total estimated cost of replacement after rehabilitation. For all other projects not requiring an environmental assessment, a small environmental review related to floodplains, wetlands, site contamination and historic resources would be undertaken. Additional information is contained in the Environmental Review Records (ERR) on file at the DND Compliance Unit, 26 Court Street, 11th Floor and may be examined or copied weekdays 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., excluding legal holidays.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the ERR to the DND Compliance Unit. All comments received by July 3, 2018 will be considered by the City of Boston prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. Comments should specify which notice they are addressing.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The City of Boston certifies to HUD that Martin J. Walsh, in his capacity as Mayor, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities and allows the City of Boston to use Program funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Boston's certification for a period of fifteen (15) days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later), only if they are on one of the following bases:

(a) The certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of either City of Boston; (b) the City of Boston has omitted a step or failed to make a decision of finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Thomas P. O'Neill Federal Building, 10 Causeway Street, Boston, MA 02222. Potential objectors should contact HUD to verify the actual last day if the objection period.

JOBS & EDUCATION

Joining the workforce faster with accelerated degrees

UMass Boston's College of Management offers programs that will help you spend less time in the classroom.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

UMass Boston and its College of Management (CM) are shaking things up and revitalizing their master's program to help students prepare for the job market. This newly minted program will allow students to earn their MBA after taking 12 classes onsite at the harbor campus or online on their own time. In addition to these accelerated MBA courses, CM has also reworked its four master of science degree programs so students can complete degrees in accounting, finance, business analytics or IT in just 10 courses.

"We have learned that today's savvy business-school students are focused on a 'QVC' approach to assessing the merits of graduate business education," explains James L. Grant, senior associate dean of the College of Management. "'Q' for 'quality' maps to our robust portfolio of graduate business programs, including our accelerated or redesigned MBA program now consisting of 12 courses and 36 credits; along with our accelerated specialized master's degree programs-accounting, finance, information technology, business analytics — that each have been consolidated into 10 courses and 30 credits.

"'V' for 'value' relates in our opinion to the attractive ROI that can be derived from our competitive graduate business programs, achieved through the expected benefits of completing our graduate programs (measured in terms of enhanced career opportunities) and obtained at reasonable cost from Boston's only urban public research university.

"In turn, 'C' maps to the 'convenience' of our graduate programs measured in dimensions such as accessibility to high-quality graduate business programs, with varying delivery options including on-ground and online courses."

The benefits of earning your degree quickly

It may seem that by taking advantage of these accelerated programs, students will miss out on the nurturing environment or qualifications that might result from a more traditional classroom setting. But CM's 10-course, 30-credit specialized master's degree programs offer many of the same course fulfillments necessary to earn these degrees over a longer time span. For instance, the MS degree in accounting has been approved by the Mass Board of Public Accountancy, which fulfills the 150-credit-hour requirement for the CPA exam. Moreover, the MS in finance program is a participating member of the CFA University Affiliation Partnership (UAP).

The school is proving that this revolutionary approach to learning can still ignite the curiosity of students no matter how much time they spend in the classroom. For example, in 2017, a team of students from CM's won the National Bloomberg Trading Challenge, a victory over 266 teams from 81 colleges and universities across the United States.

In fact, many top schools are now offering accelerated programs similar to CM's including Carnegie Mellon University and Arizona State University. With there being so much emphasis on experience in most job listings, this kind of work/school balance can help students jump into the job market feet first.

How to hack your employee health benefits

NerdWallet is a personal finance website.

caption ISTOCK

Employee health benefits can have huge value, but you may not be taking full advantage of yours.

Here are three hacks that can help you get more out of what your company offers.

Drain your FSA early

Medical flexible spending accounts allow employees to put aside pretax money, typically through payroll deduction, for health care expenses. There's no requirement that the money be contributed before it's spent, however.

Let's say you signed up to contribute the maximum $2,650 to your medical FSA for 2018. You then incurred $2,650 of eligible expenses the first week of January. You can be reimbursed for the full amount, even if your first payroll deduction hadn't been made, says Sander Domaszewicz, principal at consulting firm Mercer.

Oh, and if you leave your job before making all — or any — of the contributions? The FSA plan absorbs that cost. You don't have to pay the difference.

Claiming your FSA funds early also ensures that you spend the money before the plan's "use it or lose it" deadline, typically Dec. 31. Some plans allow $500 to be rolled over into the next year's account, or offer a two-and-a-half month grace period, so the usual deadline would be extended to March 15.

The rules are different for dependent-care FSAs, which have a $5,000 limit this year. That money can't be spent before it's contributed, Domaszewicz says.

Let your HSA grow, but keep your receipts

Health savings accounts pair with high-deductible health insurance plans and were designed to help people pay those deductibles. HSAs, however, offer a rare triple tax break: contributions avoid federal income taxes, grow tax-deferred and are tax-free when spent on qualified medical expenses.

These tax advantages are so significant that many people treat their HSAs as supplemental retirement funds. Instead of dipping into the accounts, they pay medical expenses out of pocket and leave their HSAs to grow.

> HSA OWNERS SHOULD HANG ON TO INSURANCE RECORDS AND TAX RETURNS FOR THE YEARS IN WHICH THEY INCUR QUALIFYING MEDICAL EXPENSES.

Technically, people are supposed to pay taxes and penalties on HSA withdrawals if the money isn't used for medical costs and they're under 65. The penalty is waived for those 65 and older, but the income tax remains.

It's possible, however, to avoid taxes and penalties on any withdrawal — as long as the HSA owners keep receipts for those previous out-of-pocket medical costs, says Mark Luscombe, principal analyst for tax consultant Wolters Kluwer.

The IRS has made clear that there's no time limit on reimbursing yourself. HSAs can be used to pay medical expenses from earlier years, as long as the expense occurred after the HSA was established. The IRS says the HSA owner must keep records showing:

The qualified medical expenses; proof that the expenses weren't previously paid or reimbursed from another source, such as insurance or a flexible spending account; and proof that the expenses weren't taken as an itemized deduction.

So in addition to receipts, HSA owners should hang on to insurance records and tax returns for the years in which they incur qualifying medical expenses.

Use COBRA to retire (a little) early

Saving enough to afford an early retirement is tough, but even the best savers face another huge hurdle: securing health care insurance until they turn 65.

The Affordable Care Act was supposed to provide the bridge between employer-provided insurance and Medicare. The ACA bars insurers from rejecting people for preexisting conditions and limits premiums for older Americans. Congressional attempts to repeal or undermine the act, however, have left many people uncertain about the wisdom of walking away from employer-provided health care.

Those who are at least 63½ have another option: COBRA, the federal law that requires group health plans to continue coverage for up to 18 months for many workers.

COBRA laws generally apply to group health plans offered by private-sector employers with 20 or more employees and by state and local governments. Many states have similar laws, some of which apply to employers with fewer than 20 employees.

If your employer has been paying part of your premiums, the cost for COBRA coverage may come as a shock. Employers subsidize an average 82% of the tab for individual insurance and 69% for family coverage, according to a 2017 Kaiser Family Foundation survey. Plus you'll pay additional 2% fee to cover administration costs.

Coverage for one person can cost $10,000 or more for 18 months, while family coverage could be $28,000 or more. That's a big tab, but as long as you can pay it, your coverage won't be jeopardized by political jockeying.

College has become the default next step for high school graduates, whether or not they have a career in mind. But with rising tuition costs, ballooning student debt and plenty of good jobs that don't require a bachelor's degree, it's worth exploring all your options before designing your dorm room.

Here are four other ways to get a higher education that may cost less than a state university or liberal arts college.

1 Community college

Also known as: junior or two-year college. T ypical length: one or two years. Credentials: associate degree or certificate.

Community colleges are local, typically public schools with two main paths for students: transfer preparation and career training. The transfer route is for students who eventually want to earn a bachelor's degree or higher at another college or university; classes in this track are academic in nature. The career -training route is for students who want to enter the workforce immediately after graduation; these classes typically teach specific skills that you can apply on the job.

Whichever route you choose, have a goal and plan in mind. If you're planning to transfer, communicate with your adviser regularly to ensure that the credits you're earning will transfer correctly. If you're preparing for a specific career, make sure you can earn the credential needed for that field.

2 Apprenticeship

Also known as: job-based learning. Typical length: one to six years. Credentials: nationally recognized industry certification. Apprenticeships are paid career-training programs in which students learn on the job in addition to some classroom instruction. Apprentices work full-time jobs with wages starting around $15 an hour and increasing as their skills grow. Fields offering apprenticeships include construction trades, manufacturing, health care, finance, telecommunications and transportation.

3 Trade school

Also known as: technical, career or vocational school. Typical length: one to two years or less. Credentials: certificate.

Trade schools are typically private schools — many are for-profit — that prepare students to enter a particular career directly after completing training. Many community colleges have similar, and likely more affordable, programs. Trade schools are available in fields including welding, auto mechanics, and heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC).

4 Online college

Also known as: distance learning. Many schools now offer different levels of degrees online at a fraction of the regular cost.

Doing college online can give you the flexibility to learn on your own schedule and pace, as long as you're self-motivated enough to keep up with the work. It can be a good option for parents, full-time workers and students with disabilities.

WILL CELTICS GO ALL-IN ON KAWHI?

OPINION

MATT BURKE

Matt Burke is the Executive Sports Editor and a columnist at Metro US. Follow him on Twitter @burke_metro

Celtics boss Danny Ainge has gone on record as saying that he is only going to "tinker" with the Boston roster this offseason. Pretty sure he said that last year as well and he wound up overhauling half the team. So, with Ainge you never really know.

Even when things were rolling for the Celtics during this past regular season, it always seemed like they were one piece away from truly being able to compete with Golden State for NBA supremacy. Remember, these Warriors are a team that won 73 games – and THEN added a top three talent in the NBA in Kevin Durant. To beat a team like that, "adding" ONLY a healthy Kyrie Irving and Gordon Hayward this offseason might not be enough. The challenge is that tall in competing with what could very well go down in NBA history as the finest roster ever assembled.

That is why Kawhi Leonard is very much on the table this offseason for the Celtics. Leonard is a former NBA Finals MVP, and no matter how you slice it would be an upgrade for the Celtics over Jaylen Brown. Overall Brown had a spectacular postseason for the C's this spring – but there were many costly occasions where he disappeared on offense, including the Celtics Game 7 loss to the Cavaliers. In that game Brown shot 3-for-12 from 3-point territory and finished with just 13 points in 39 minutes.

The 26-year-old Leonard has already established himself as a sure-thing in the NBA playoffs as he averaged 27.7 points per game in 2017. The 21-year-old Brown just isn't a lock yet to put up those kind of numbers.

Another thing that Ainge, who has made his bones as an out-of-the-box thinker, has to be aware of is the fact that the Celtics' primary competition in the Eastern Conference for the next decade – the Philadelphia 76ers – will also be targeting Leonard this summer. In fact, Philly is the favorite to land Kawhi as he would be the perfect complement to the poor shooting Ben Simmons and the unicorn known as Joel Embiid.

Would it be so absurd if part of the reason Ainge covets Kawhi is to keep him away from his main competition in the East?

The Celtics are also the only team that would be interested in Leonard that has as many tradeable assets as the Sixers. The Sixers have two first round picks this season, and can also dangle Markelle Fultz and Dario Saric. The Celtics are the only contending team that can compete with that – with next year's Kings pick (which is looking great right now) and the Grizzlies and Clippers first rounders (there are many strings tied to those picks, but they are still big-time assets) available. Of course, the Spurs would ask for a current young asset from the Celtics as well.

Kawhi Leonard averaged 27.7 points per game in the 2017 NBA playoffs and is a former NBA Finals MVP.

It's become clear that the Celtics will not be trading Jayson Tatum after this postseason, as Tatum's ceiling is legitimately "best player in the NBA." Brown's ceiling is not quite as high, and that is why he's the most obvious one to be traded if the Celtics do indeed make a blockbuster trade for Kawhi.

San Antonio has repeatedly said that it would only trade away Leonard if it got a "grand slam offer." Here is what The Ringer's Kevin O'Connor wrote about Kawhi's situation with the Spurs last month.

"I've heard from multiple NBA executives that San Antonio won't settle for anything less than a grand slam offer," O'Connor wrote. "If offers were underwhelming around the draft and the start of free agency, the Spurs might opt to let the saga drag into training camp, or even into the season. Leonard could always rekindle his relationship with the team, or return to the floor and increase his trade value."

Gotta think a package like this would constitute as at least a three-run homer for Spurs GM RC Buford, if not a grand slam:

Jaylen Brown
Terry Rozier
Marcus Morris
Guerschon Yabusele
Abdel Nader
Kings first round pick
Grizzlies first round pick

Mexico shocks defending champs Germany in Group F opener

Hirving Lozano's goal propelled El Tri to an unlikely victory over heavy favorites Germany.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Mexico has exhibited a tendency to play up against elite opponents on the world soccer stage and it had another opportunity to do so on Sunday against Germany in Group F play at the 2018 World Cup. On Sunday, it did just that with a 1-0 victory over the defending world champions thanks to a Hirving Lozano goal 35 minutes into the match.

This is the third-consecutive World Cup that a defending champion has been unable to win its opening match. Italy drew to Paraguay in 2010 while Spain was embarrassed by the Netherlands four years ago. Even more remarkable is the fact that Germany has already trailed more in this World Cup than they did all throughout 2014 (eight minutes vs. Ghana).

There was quite a detour in manager Juan Carlos Osorio's tactics from the usual possession soccer Mexico tends to play. Instead, El Tri seemed content to sit back and absorb Germany's high press and try to find seams of openings behind the midfield in a counter-attacking manner.

It presented some good chances on the break for Mexico to obtain an unlikely opener in the opening half hour, but hesitation near the German box paired with some struggles from midfielder Miguel Layun resulted in those opportunities falling by the wayside.

A counterattack finally reaped a reward for the underdogs in the 35th minute sparked by Carlos Vela, who freed Javier Hernandez with a brilliant through ball from Mexico's own half. With numbers, Hernandez streaked down the center of the pitch and sent a low pass to Lozano on the left side of the box. After one cut got him past a German defender, he coolly finished past Manuel Neuer with his right foot to send the Mexican fans in Moscow into delirium.

The Germans almost sobered the celebrating fans three minutes later when a free kick from Toni Kroos was saved onto the crossbar by Guillermo Ochoa.

Germany pressure only built in the second half as they adapted to Mexico's counter-attacking prowess for the most part. Although Hernandez wasted a glorious 2-on-2 break that could have secured all three points with 35 minutes left to play.

Regardless, there was still plenty of probing by the Germans around the Mexico box, but El Tri remained resolute, ensuring Germany was unable to connect on that final ball. That included a hit post on a backheel by Julian Brandt in the 89th minute.

It's a rare flop for Germany in a World Cup opener. In its last four introductions to a World Cup, Germany had outscored its opponents 20-2. The victory is Mexico's first against Germany in four meetings World Cup play and immediately puts El Tri in the driver's seat to win Group F with matches against Sweden and South Korea remaining.

Aries A business trip or networking function will lead to an unexpected change. Use what happens to make positive changes to how or where you live. Celebrate with someone you love.

Taurus A change of plans will cause stress. Do what you can and rely on someone you've helped in the past to assist you now. Make clear what you want done.

Gemini Participate, take on a challenge and set your own standards, but don't mess with the rules, regulations or authority figures. Don't tempt fate or take a physical risk.

Cancer Broaden your horizons by taking part in something that will help you get ahead. Networking, taking up a new hobby or maximizing your qualifications will encourage unexpected prospects offering greater security.

Leo Don't be surprised by what others do. Expect someone to interfere, and be ready to counter any meddling that occurs. Don't get angry when diplomacy is what's needed to maintain control.

Virgo Do your part and make change happen. Iron out any foreseeable problems and move forward with confidence. It's up to you to take the initiative and to enforce concrete plans.

Libra Put more time and effort into doing your share. Don't wait for someone to complain or to criticize you. Physical action will be the best way to show off your capabilities.

Scorpio You'll face challenges if you take on too much. An abrupt physical change is likely if you take a risk. Don't get into a dispute with a loved one.

Sagittarius Don't expect help. Do what needs to be done without making a fuss. Don't listen to someone who tries to use emotional manipulation to sway your opinion. Romance is highlighted.

Capricorn Set your course and don't stop until you reach your destination. A change will turn out to be more beneficial than anticipated. Speak up and get things done.

Aquarius Take part in events that get you moving or are conducive to fitness, nutrition and overall good health. Moderation is in your best interest. Romance is encouraged.

Pisces Go over personal finances and figure out what you can afford before you commit to something that could go over budget. Negotiate on your own behalf.
